

I oppose any action to relax the current FCC indecency standards. The Supreme Court has confirmed the FCC's authority to enforce policies regarding expletives and nudity, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

Relaxing the current policy would not serve the public interest and I urge the FCC to reject all proposals that would allow for the broadcast of expletives and nudity on FCC-licensed stations.

However, I do not object to tightening the restriction policies regarding expletives and nudity, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening. Further, I urge the FCC to take greater responsibility and actually enforce the current restrictions as they are written.

The FCC currently makes a very weak effort to enforce the restrictions to expletives and nudity displayed during "prime time" viewing hours. Why are so called cable channels not held to the same standard as television broadcast over the airwaves? Cable and satellite are now the primary methods of transmission for all broadcasting services.
